Time Fixed for Taking a Vote on the Amendments.

day Afternoon

A determined effort was made by Senator Davis yesterday to secure unanimous conbe taken on the arbitration treaty, but only succeeded to the extent of obtaining an agreement to a time for a vote on the miscellaneous amendments. The executive session continued from 12:39 until 5 o'clock Considerable time was spent in contention over the effort to secure a time for a vote and it was only after decided controversy that the opponents of ratification agreed to a date for voting on the amen lments. They based their opposition on the fact that there were a good many absentees whom they considered it desirable to have in the Senate when the vote should be taken. The understanding as to the vote on the amendments was reached on a plan outlined by Senator Hoar. It provides that lined by Senator Hoar. It provides that the general discussion on amendments shall continue until 2 o'clock on Wednesday of next v.cek, when a vote is to be taken on those which may be pending at that time; that, in case any of the amendments are agreed to, the treaty as amended shall be rejitted and returned to the Senata and their printed and returned to the Senate and shall printed and returned to the Senate and shall still be open to amendment, but that the final vote on amendments shall be taken at 4 o'clock the following day. Thursday.

The main debate of the day was upon the Chilton amendment providing for submitting all agreements for arbitration made under the treaty to the Senate for its approval before entering upon a course of settlement. Senator Morgan supported the amendment. He amounted himself as opposed to the treaty in any shape, but said that if it was to be ratified at all the amendment should by all means be accepted; otherwise the treaty would be subversive of some of our most cherished American ideas.

versive of some of our most cherished American ideas.

Senator Lodge made a strong plea for the treaty without further amendment. He said that while always a warm advocate of the principle of arbitration, he had from the first contended for amendments which would render the treaty acceptable to the American public. He felt satisfied, he said, that the modifications made in committee had accomplished completely this purpose, and that the document as amerided was one that would command itself to every supporter of peaceable methods for the adjustment of disputes and to every friend of humanity. He thought ro other amendments were necessary. He also held that the committee amendments would in effect require the submission of all agreements under the treaty to the Senate.

Senators Davis and Hoar made brief speeches, practically taking the same ground. It was apparent during the session that the friends of the treaty hold that the committee amendments will accomplish, though in more diploments in practically.

sion that the friends of the treaty hold that the committee amendments will accomplish, though in more diplomatic phraseology, the end sought to be attained by the Chilton amendment. Several senators, among them Messrs. Thurston and Spooner, asked if this were the case why it should not be explicitly stated, as in the Chilton provision. They advanced the idea that the adoption of this language might have the effect of preventing future misunderstandings.

ARGUED BEFORE JUDGE KEITH. Trying to Settle the Police Board Cor troversy in Alexandria.

ndence of The Evening Star. RICHMOND, Va., March 24, 1897. A hearing took place today before Judge Keith of the supreme court of appeals in the controversy between the mayor and board of police commissioners of Alexandria, Judge Keith having been requested to act as an arbitrator in the matter. Mr. A. W. Armstrong argued the case on behalf of the police commissioners, while Mr. Samuel J. Brent, the corporation coun-sel, looked after the interests of the mayor. The conference, which was of a strictly private nature, lasted two hours, and those present when seen on the matter.

present, when seen on the subject after ward, said that Judge Keith would tande present, when seen on the subject afterward, said that Judge Keith would render his decision in a few days.

The questions presented for the consideration of Judge Keith arose under certain acts of the general assembly, amending the charter of the city of Alexandria, and involving the management and control of the police department of that city.

Prior to the acts of 1833-94 the police department was under the control and management of the city council. The policemen were elected by that body every two years, and, by an act passed in 1892, the mayor was authorized to suspend or remove any police officer for misconduct in office or neglect of duty, and, in the event of removal of police officer, he was directed to communicate the facts, with his reasons to the city council without delay, that the vacancy might be filled. But in the event of the suspension of a police officer, he was not required to make the conficer of a police officer, he was not required to make the conficer of a police officer, he was not required to make the conficer of a police officer, he was not required to make the conficer of a police officer, he was not required to make the conficer of a police officer, he was not required to make the conficer of a police officer, he was not required to make the conficer of a police officer, he was not required to make the conficer of a police officer, he was not required to make the control of the conficer of a police officer, he was not required to make the control of the control of the conficer of the control of t lay, that the vacancy might be filled. But in the event of the suspension of a police officer, he was not required to make may officer, he was not required to make any such report.

During the session of 1863-34 the charter of the city was so amended as to estab-lish a board for the government and man-agement of the police force.

In the argument before Judge Keith this morning his honor's attention was called to morning his honor's attention was called to the clarters of the cities of Lynchburg and Norfolk, which adthorize the mayor of each city to suspend any policeman from office until the board of commissioners convene and take action in the matter. The authority vested in the mayor of the city of Alexandria is therefore different from that of the mayor of the other two cities, and counsel for the mayor contended that if the legislature had deemed it proper to take away from the mayor of the city of Alexandria the power of syspension verted. to take away from the mayor of the city of Alexandria the power of suspension vested in him by the act of 1891-'92, until the police board had convened and taken action in the matter it would have said so in clear in the matter it would have said so in clear and distinct terms, as it did in the charters of Lynchburg and Norfolk.

An intent to change an existing law should fully appear and statutes shall not be so construed as to interfere with rights previously granted by the legislature until the intent to do so was clear.

previously granted by the legislature until the intent to do so was clear.

It is claimed by counsel for the mayor that the section of the act which Judge Keith is asked to construe invests but one power, that of removal, in the board of police commissioners, while the power of suspension is exclusively vested in the mayor, who is the chairman of the board and has charge of the police force for the preservation of peace, the enforcement of the laws and the good order of the city. If the mayor could suspend for one day and then have his act of suspension reversed by the board, his authority would amount to nothboard, his authority would amount to nothing. His action, however, is authorized by the legislature and therefore cannot be reversed by the board of police commissioners.

Judge Kelth's decision will probably be THE CABINET HIS GUESTS.

Civil Service Commissioner Rice En

ary to the President, Mr. John Addison members of the cabinet, the secre-

Porter, and Messrs. John R. Procter and John B. Harlow, civil service commissioners, were the guests at dinner Tuesday ever-ing of Mr. Wm. G. Rice of the civil service commission. But for the debate in the Senate yesterday there would be no question as to the object of the social courtesy shown by Mr. Rice to his guests. The shown by Mr. Rice to his guests. The criticisms brought out at the Capitol, without other knowledge, would give color of truth to the report that went about today that the dinner was arranged to give opportunity to talk over appointments, with a view to having personal assurances that the commission will be supported in the execution of the civil service law. It therefore makes the little social event a little less interesting than it might otherwise have been to learn that Mr. Rice invited his guests the 8th and 9th of March, a fortnight before the Serate debate occurred. Secretary Gage, who is a candid and earnest civil service reformer, accepted the invitation on the 10th of March, the others with the following two or three days. The object was wholly a social one, to bring about a better acquaintance between the commissioners and the members of the cabinet, with whom they are constantly in correspondence on official matters. It is quite possibly a fact that literature, art and science were not the only topics of conversation, and that now and then between the courses a word or two about the civil service law and system came in by way of variety.
